SIGNS, SIGNS SIGNS. NOW WHAT? Dr. Ron Elfenbein To Recycle Campaign Signs

ANNAPOLIS - Everywhere you look, campaign signs are popping up all over Maryland. After Tuesday's primary election, many candidates are out of the race, and no longer need their signs on street corners and in residents' yards. What happens to all these signs now?

In an effort to continue his green approach and environmental stewardship, Dr. Ron Elfenbein, candidate for district 30 state senate, is offering to pick up unwanted campaign signs and recycle them for democrats and republican alike. Simply gather the signs, and Ron or one of his many volunteers will be happy to pick them up at your location.

Dr. Elfenbein lives the green values he intends to fight for in Maryland. Along with driving a hybrid vehicle, he uses CFL light bulbs in his home, always prints double-sided on paper, and rides his bike throughout district 30 for door knocking. He hopes that by recycling these unwanted campaign signs, he can do a small part to preserve our beautiful state's natural resources.

Please email Dr. Elfenbein at ron@electronelfenbein.com to schedule a campaign sign pick up.
